4th of July.

The 4th of July Committee met on Tuesday evening and did any amount of good work for the celebration. Carson will celebrate Saturday July 3.

Col. Rosser and Jacob Muller have been added to the Committee. It will meet again Tuesday May 18.

A Washington telegram to the New York Times, in speaking of Gould's testimony before the Senate Committee on Labor says:

The Committee acted as if it were oppressed by the greatness of the man it had summoned.

If the members of the Committee was so affected it seems high time that the Committee was discharged and some sensible men put in their places. The idea of a Committee of U. S. Senators covering before a common thief and monumental rascal like Gould, is worse than absurd.

The Wikersham murderer has hanged himself.

ALL SORTS.

Hock Mason was in the city yesterday.

Judge Edwards will open the District Court to-day.

A fellow in Virginia City slandered a young lady and her parents gave him a good cow-hiding. The jury acquitted them.

As a superb hair dressing and renovator Ayer's Hair Vigor is universally commended. It eradicates scurf and dandruff, cures all eruptions and itchings of the scalp promotes the renewed growth of the hair, and surely prevents its fading or turning gray.

The enervation and lassitude of spring time are but indications of the sluggish action of the blood, overloaded with carbonates accumulated by the use of heating food in winter. This condition may be remedied by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier known.

Rev. D. M. Carpenter, of Clymer, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., writes March 2, 1885: My boy, two years old took a severe cold which settled in his throat and lungs. Nothing afforded relief, and I thought he must die. Finally I put an Alcock's Porous Plaster around the throat and one on the chest. In less than an hour his breathing became better, and he fell asleep. In twenty-four hours the child was well.

The Fresno Steam Laundry has been burned, and the fire is supposed to have been caused by an incendiary. If it had been a Chinese washhouse, the news would have reached Canton and Boston in the form of another burning of Rome. But under the present circumstances the natural supposition that the fire was started by Chinamen; revengeful at being frozen out of business, will not attract any attention.

WORTH THE EFFORT.

How Reno Regards the Anti-Chinese Movement.

The people of Reno have shown an admirable disposition in the anti-Chinese movement. They have been forced in self defense to do something, otherwise the Chinamen leaving Truckee, Carson and other towns would flood the place. Under pledges of support from the entire community, a steam laundry has been purchased and is ready for work. Almost all the cooks, house-cleaning, etc. have already been let out. The vegetable peddlers and laundrymen still pursue their vocations but will be cut off next Sunday, and with a little more perseverance on the part of the people the question will be solved. It is the universal desire of every one to see them go and as long as this is the case people should not cavil as to methods. We have heard no one say that they did not desire the change, but some are very touchy about how it shall be made. This is childlike and unbecoming where there is so much at stake. The arguments have been gone over so often that it is needless to repeat them, but when we can rid the town of an opium smoking, gambling nest and replace its inhabitants with white people who will add largely to the circulating medium of the country, it seems as though it was worth quite a sacrifice—Gazette.

In Earnest.

W. H. McInnis says his motive for investing his means in the Steam Laundry was to drive the Chinese out of Reno, and that if the citizen as a body will pledge themselves to not patronize the Chinese, he is willing to turn over all he has invested to any one person or association of persons who will run the business, as he proposes to run it, that is, so as to serve the people—not as a matter of speculation—Gazette.

The Warren Junior Ball.

Don't forget the grand ball to be given on the 14th of May, by the Warren Junior Hosiery Co. It is not often that the Juniors give the dance lovers such a treat, and everybody should take advantage of this opportunity. The dance will take place at Armory Hall, which will be artistically decorated. The Virginia Orchestra of seven pieces has been engaged for the occasion, and neither pains nor money are being spared to make the ball a success in every particular. For further particulars see advertisement.

SENATOR STANFORDS EARLY AMBITION.

The Washington Sunday Capital says: Few men have a higher respect for the influence of the press and its power in swaying public opinion in doing good than Senator Stanford. He believes that a newspaper is a great educator, that it is as important to the country as the common school, and does not share the belief indulged in by so many Senators that newspapers exist to belittle the characters and destroy the reputation of public men. Senator Stanford's early ambition was to become an editor, and at one time he narrowly escaped that fate. At the town where he spent his boyhood and studied law, Fort Washington, Wis., there was no newspaper, but there was a literary society and debating club of young men, who at their meeting decided to form a stock company, and establish a weekly journal for the benefit of the public and themselves. * * * The company was organized, the money was raised to purchase type, and he was elected editor, a position which at that time was the summit of his ambition. A committee of stockholders of which young Stanford was chairman, was sent to Milwaukee to buy a press and material, and to employ a man to perform the mechanical work of the establishment. With his associates he got into a wagon and drove forty miles on this errand, but, much to their disappointment, upon arriving at Milwaukee, they found that there was no printing press to be had in the city, and none could be purchased nearer than New York. So the enterprise was abandoned, and young Stanford's career was turned in another direction.

Measure for Measure.

There was a large audience last evening to witness Shakspeare's historic play of "Measure for Measure," produced for the first time in this city. Isabella, by Miss Celia Alsberg was a pleasing and well rounded piece of work and showed painstaking study. She is a lady with a specially musical voice, rich in elocutionary capacity, but tested beyond its measure perhaps, in scenes requiring great power of expression. A pleasing figure and intellectual face complete the picture of a lady who although connected some years with the stage in minor roles, makes her debut in this character, playing it only the second time last evening. She has been brought to the front as a star by Lewis Morrison, and with such excellent material he will in another year see his judgment vindicated by her success.

Sheridan, as the Duke, gave the audience a finished piece of work, handling his role as only such a great actor can. Mr. Morrison showed the cruel, crafty and hypocritical traits of Angelo to the life, and his reading of the text was magnificent.

Geo. E. Staley appeared as Escalus, Geo. W. Wessell, as Claudio, W. H. Thompson as Elbow, Rosebell Roy as Marianna, very effectively. The rest of the support was good, and as a whole was the strongest Shakspearian company that ever visited this city.

The play is objected to by some as one of the broadest of Shakspeare's dramas but no one but admits, that the fact that no earthly power can debase a truly virtuous woman any more than it can control the action of the votaries of pleasure, could in no way be more strikingly illustrated. The safe passage of Isabella through the fire of temptation, the pardon of her brother and the fate of the cold-blooded Judge closes the performance in a manner which places the audience on the best of terms with the actors the managers and themselves.

Not a Home Institution.

During the last few days the Mechanics' Store of Sacramento has flooded this city with circulars asking the patronage of the people of Carson.

People who receive these circulars should bear in mind that there are several good grocery stores here, whose owners spend their money in this city, and who are citizens and taxpayers deserving of patronage. It is folly for Carson people to send money away to Sacramento when they can do just as well with it right here.

CHARGES AGAINST McGLASHAN.

What the Foothill Tidings Think of Them.

The Argonaut and News Letter have made some very damaging charges against C. F. McGlashan leader of the anti-Chinese movement in California. These charges accuse him with about all the crimes on the calendar, and are mainly made by a man named Deasy. The charges if true should certainly be followed by McGlashan's resignation from the Committee. The Foothill Tidings a paper of good standing has the following to say in his defense.

Mr. Deasy was, we think, a deputy United States Marshal, under Marshal Hew, and was in Truckee when the movement there against the Chinese was in its hottest. Mr. Deasy is connected, we understand, with the Harry Morse detective agency at San Francisco. We have no means of knowing what Mr. Deasy knows about Mr. McGlashan but we do know, however, that McGlashan was two years ago elected to the Assembly from the 25th District, a part of this county by a large majority and over one of the best men in the county. Mr. McGlashan is still a lawyer in good standing at the bar; he is a member in high degree of one of the most particular and honorable orders of this county, and he is met and well received by the ladies and gentlemen wherever he goes. The bad things insinuated against Mr. McGlashan in the Argonaut, must have occurred, if they did occur at all, some years before Mr. McGlashan's election. The fact of that election and the further fact of Mr. McGlashan retaining his social standing argue that Mr. Deasy must be mistaken in the conclusions regarding Mr. McGlashan. At all events the big majority in this part of the country are estopped in listening to the charges made.

The Maxwell Trial.

New York, April 27.—The Herald's St. Louis Special says: On Monday, May 10th, the case of Walter H. Lennox Maxwell, alias Hugh M. Brooks, charged with murdering C. Arthur Preller in the Southern Hotel and placing his body in a trunk, comes up for trial in the Criminal Court. No trial that has taken place here for years has been watched with as much interest as this one. It is expected that the court-room will be thronged during its entire progress. The Clerk of the Criminal Court has received leniently depositions from England regarding the prisoner most of which give the latter a uniformly good character. The testimony now in points to a defense of mistaken identity.

An Accurate Interview.

"Newspaper men are keen," said Senator Sherman, "and Washington is a great place for their development. I remember on one occasion one of them called on me to get my views on some question of finance current at the time, and I was very busy hanging pictures in my house and not interested very much just then in great national issues. I told him I hadn't a thing to tell him, that I had already, only a few days before, made an exhaustive speech on the subject, and was pumped dry. He looked sad I thought, and I did what I could to console him, but couldn't give him any points for an interview—not a word, and he went away. The next day or the day after I saw the copy of his paper, a leading daily, and there I found a column of talk with myself on the question at issue. They were my sentiments exactly, too. How did he get it? Why he just took a copy of my speech, and making his questions, he picked answers from the speech until he had made up as precise an interview as the most exacting editor could ask." "Where is that young man now?" "Really, I don't know; but I presume he is getting $10 a week somewhere in the wide world of newspaperdom."—Washington Critic.

Platt Blocks the Walk.

Yesterday there was a great commotion in front of Joe Platt's. Dray load after dray load of goods arrived, and presently the sidewalk was completely blocked. It was certainly the biggest Spring stock of goods ever landed in the port of Carson. About a month ago Platt placed a large advertisement in the APPEAL, and his stock was soon cleared out of about everything in it.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. Royal Baking Powder Co., 106 Wall St., N. Y.
